

"Help with Homework" Web Sites

GENERAL HELP

sunsite.berkeley.edu/KidsClick! - Compiled by librarians, the KidsClick! search engine looks a lot like Yahoo!, but the topics are kid-friendly and mostly academic.

www.studyweb.com - Lightspans' Study Web is also set up like a search engine; you can do a specific search or browse through academic categories.

www.schoolwork.org - Also known as Schoolwork.ugh!, this site lets you click on one of 26 categories (art, science, biography, religion, math); within each category, you'll find links to sites that offer more specialized information.

www.Proquest12.com - This site allows you to search for specific topics or browse by topic. You can also search for information designed for specific age group.

www.infoplease.com/homework - The search engine Infoplease.com offers a homework-help search engine and a page full of links to useful information, including a kids' almanac, maps, news, and biographies.

www.ipl.org - The Internet Public Library has a teen and youth divisions; both offer links to general (and age-appropriate) homework-help sites.

FOR MATH HELP

www.math.com - Math.com offers formulas, free mini-lessons in any area, and free limited use of a software program that helps you solve equations.

mathforum.org/dr.math/dr-math.html - Ask Dr. Math is divided by age group (elementary, middle school, high school, college) and offers an extensive archive of previously asked math questions. You can also send in your own question, but the site is busy, you're not guaranteed an answer.

FOR SCIENCE HELP

www.sciam.com/askexpert - Scientific American magazine offers a well-organized archive of Ask the Experts questions and answers. You can send in your question, but the site can't reply to individuals - and only the most interesting exchanges are posted.

FOR SOCIAL STUDIES HELP

www.odci.gov/cia/publications/factbook - The CIA offers a comprehensive guide to countries, with maps and encyclopedic, organized information about any country you can think of.

CONSULT AN EXPERT

www.askmecorp.com - AskMe.com consults real people for answers to your questions. To get to the "homework help" part of this site, go to the main page and select Education, then Homework Assistance.

**This information is reprinted from The Houston Chronicle. Article by Alyson Ward, Knight Ridder Newspapers*

OTHER HOMEWORK HELPERS

www.askjeeves.com

www.familyeducation.com

www.homeworkhelper.com

www.nosweat.com

www.aplus.com

<http://www.refdesk.com/homework.html>

<http://www.hpl.lib.tx.us/services/askatutor.html>